

NAPA
O-13
1

FORESIGHT AND NATIONAL DECISIONS

The Horseman and the Bureaucrat

by Lindsey Grant

with contributions by Clement Bezold
and John Sterman

and a foreword by Elliot L. Richardson

UNIVERSITY PRESS OF AMERICA

Lanham • New York • London

CONTENTS

Foreword	(Elliot L. Richardson)	vii
Preface		xi
Part One	The Issue Defined	1
Chapter I.	What Is Governmental Foresight Capability?	3
Part Two	The State of the Art	17
Chapter II.	The Federal Executive. What Has Been Tried?	19
Chapter III.	Case Study: the Global Issues Work Group	57
Chapter IV.	The Role of Congress	75
Chapter V.	Lessons from State and Local Government (Clement Bezold)	83
Chapter VI.	Advice from Business	99
Chapter VII.	The World Outside: International Connections	115
Chapter VIII.	A Skeptic's Guide to Computer Models (John Sterman)	133
Part Three	What More Is Needed?	171
Chapter IX.	Why More Foresight?	173
Chapter X.	Current Proposals	195
Chapter XI.	The Obstacles	217
Chapter XII.	A Tentative Proposal	225

Appendices:

A. The Cabinet Council System in the First Reagan Administration	249
B. Presidential Statement of April 11, 1985, Abolishing the Cabinet Councils	253
C. Federal Directories Relevant to Foresight . .	255
D. Survey of Selected Citizens' Goals and Futures Projects	259
E. Project Description: "Corporate Use of Information Regarding Natural Resources and Environmental Quality"	265
F. 21st Century Studies	269
G. The Authors	273

by E

Several year
booklet titled I Political Process
because it dealt
governments: i
government, in ma
effects and long alternatives it i

The problem
it are continuing
In Washington, ho
have been subme
itself the resul
decade or more.

I am delight
original booklet
foresight and i
in local governm
world. Such a s

Since I st
since there has better national some of the t
foreword.

Abraham Li
where we are,
better judge wh
stand whither capability.

To know
wise in our ch
weigh competiti
morrow, it wil
sight capabil